Statement of Paxton Smith

The Mississippi case has the potential to determine the future of reproductive rights in this country. The outcome could lead to millions of women being stripped of the basic right to decide how they live their lives. Thousands of women could be forced to have children against their will. It is a very dystopian reality to imagine... a world where half of the population's lives could be dictated by the personal beliefs of a few.

This is America, this is supposed to be home of the free, but we are on the cusp of that America being a thing of the past.
