Statement of Daniella Mohazab

We have made this progress because of all of the women who have spoken up and because of everyone who has given us support. Victims, you can still speak up. I am a Trojan, just like you. I picked up a phone, called Ms. Allred, and made a decision to fight for justice. You can too.

The $215 million settlement is a mockery to each of Dr. Tyndall's victims. USC can do more. USC, do more. Prove that you understand the pain we now incur. Understand us.

USC, you need to hold yourself accountable. Be true to everyone- make amends to the victims: your students and alumni.

USC's 2018 Strategic Plan has four pillars: values, people, impact, and transformation. Under transformation, USC writes, "Transformation: Audacity has been a defining characteristic of USC. As we reinvent the future, we will simultaneously reinvent ourselves."

It is 2018. USC, push forward with this transformation. Be accountable for your actions and oversight.
